

Cornwalls knows your industry

Navigating the tricky regulatory frameworks within the contracting landscape can be extremely difficult. Regularly changing legislation only adds to the frustrations of those working within the industry.

At Cornwalls, we understand and specialise in the contracting industry. With over 30 years experience working with the specialised trades industries, our team has detailed, on the ground knowledge of the regulatory environment in the industry and can provide you timely and efficient solutions. It is likely that if you have a problem, we have seen it before.

Cornwalls works closely with the specialist trades industry associations, providing us a unique vantage point from which we can deliver tailored, practical, cost-effective and industry specific legal services to members.

We remove the legal jargon and use plain and simple language. Clear, concise communication is one of the keys to a successful lawyer-client relationship and that is our commitment to you.
